Gain In Metal Export

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Exports of iron and steel during January totaled 160,920 tons, compared with 129,321 tons in December, the department of commerce announced today. Although the figures show an important increase in business, some of the tonnage gain, it was explained, was due to the addition of steel items to the iron and steel classification.

Exports of crude oil for the year 1921 the department announced, increased about ten per cent over 1920. This was accounted for principally by larger shipments to Canada, the total of 391,000,000 gallons compared with 272,000,000 gallons in 1920.

Bandits Get Big Payroll

BROWNSVILLE, PA., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Albert Fleming, manager of the W. J. Kelley and Company store at Allison, Pa., and C. O. Evans, chief clerk, were robbed of approximately $30,000, the company's mine pay roll, by six bandits who held up a trolley car three miles from here today. Elmer Hill, who accompanied Fleming and Evans as guards, was shot, but not seriously wounded. The bandits escaped in an automobile.

Three occupants of a house at Tulsa, Okla., escaped death, although an explosion blew the roof 60 feet away.

Revolution Breaks Out In Tripoli

ROME, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—A revolution on a large scale has broken out in Tripoli, says a dispatch to the newspaper from its correspondent in the capital. The rebels have cut the railway in many places and attacked the Italian garrisons.

At Aziza two companies of Italian soldiers surrounded by rebels are receiving food dropped from airplanes.

The Italians have evacuated Chatter and Zavia. The latter is on the coast about 125 miles east of the city of Tripoli.

A Tripoli dispatch by way of Rome on February 13, told of fighting between rebels and the Italian forces at Mazrat, near Aziza. It was then stated that the Italian government regarded the trouble as an isolated demonstration.

Amusement Promoter Murdered

RIVERSIDE, N. J., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—John Theodore Brunen, an amusement promoter and owner of the Doris and Ferris Circus, was shot and killed last night while seated near a first floor window of his home reading. A full charge from a shot gun struck him behind the left ear. His wife was on the second floor when the shooting occurred and found the body of her husband on the floor when she rushed into the room.

There is no clue as to who fired the shot. Mrs. Brunen's mother and the slain man's daughter had left the house only a few minutes before the shooting. In July, 1920, the Brunen home was entered by two men who held up Mrs. Brunen and robbed the place of jewelry and money. According to Burlington county authorities today, the descriptions of the two men resemble those of two of three men seen by neighbors to park a motor car near the Brunen home last night, before the shooting.

Radio Waves Travel More Easily Through The Ground Or Under Waters Of Sea

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Mar. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Under certain conditions, radio waves might travel more easily through the ground or the waters of the sea than through the air, it was said today by Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, chief consulting engineer for the General Electric Co.

He said he considered well-founded the supposition that recent performances of low power radio sending apparatus in transmitting messages to surprising distances gave an indication that the radiations peculiar to wireless transmission pass with equal ease through the earth as through the ether.

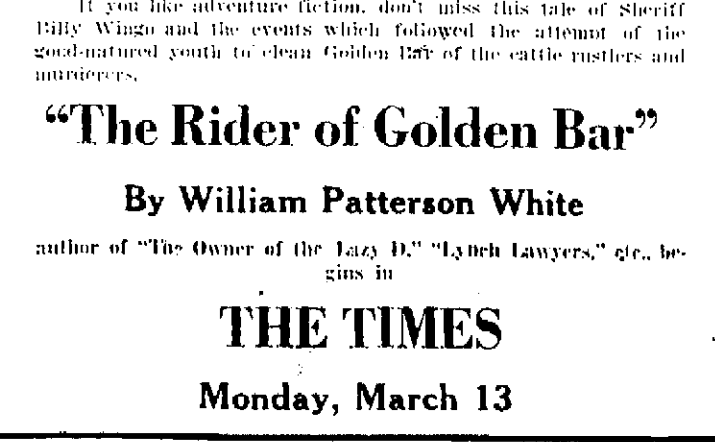

Wireless telephony, it was said by associates of Dr. Steinmetz today, had been revolutionized by the successful performance of the duplex transmitters, completed early this week when conversations were held between New York and passengers aboard the steamer America at the time a distance of 360 miles at sea.

The duplex telephone enables land lines to be linked in with the radio, so that one might talk over his own home telephone to persons far at sea.

Heretofore such a link was impracticable because it was necessary to turn a switch from "send" to "receive" in the radio apparatus each time the speaker became the listener.

Murder From Ambush Awaited Her Lover!

Behind a rock lay Jack Murray, his Winchester trained on the spot where Billy Wingo would appear in a few moments. The girl grasped the situation, leaped into the backboard and started the mules at a gallop. Could she give the warning in time? "A Winchester cracked in the rear. The near mule staggered, tried to turn a somersault, and collapsed in a heap of sprawling legs and out-thrust neck."

It you like adventure fiction, don't miss this tale of Sheriff Billy Wingo and the events which followed the attempt of the good-natured youth to clean Golden Bar of the cattle rustlers and murderers.

(BY A. L. BRADFORD)

(Copyright, 1922 by United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—The four-power Pacific treaty was framed around the arms conference table from the drafts submitted by Secretary of State Hughes, Arthur J. Balfour, of Great Britain, and Ambassador Shidehara, of Japan.

It is a compromise of drafts presented by the leaders.

No one man wrote the pact, as has been charged in the senate, although the treaty in its final form more nearly resembles the draft prepared by Shidehara.

Its formation was prompted by Anglo-Japanese suggestions that a new treaty be drawn to scrap the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The above is the answer to the question: "Who wrote the four-power pact?"—now the center of a stormy debate in the senate which threatens to menace the ratification of the treaty. It is based on information obtained when the United Press exclusively gave America the first news that the treaty had been framed and approved by the "Big Three," and on other information collected since conference from reliable diplomatic sources.

Inside story of the treaty fight in this, Prince Togawa, Japanese delegate made the first public suggestion of an understanding between United States, Great Britain and Japan. He framed to replace the Anglo-Japanese alliance. He then, at a dinner, broached the subject to Arthur Balfour and Sir Auckland Geddes of the British delegation. The British approved of his plan, but suggested there might be some difficulty in getting it through the senate.

Tokogawa replied there might be some form of "understanding," not necessitating senate ratification in advance of a treaty. Hughes at an early conference informed Balfour and Baron Kato, chief Japanese delegate to this country he stood for scrapping the alliance, and the conference might as well go no further unless this was done. Great Britain and Japan stated their willingness to scrap the alliance under a satisfactory agreement to replace it.

Seeing this was the only way of getting rid of the alliance which he regarded as a menace to the United States Hughes entered the negotiations after making it plain a new understanding must be in the form of a treaty to be ratified by the senate and must be of such form as to preserve peace in the Pacific.

Balfour submitted the first draft in the form of an agreement between three countries. This was said to be virtually a triple alliance and was rejected. Then Shidehara on his sick bed drew up his draft, and continued to participate in negotiations, through a confidential messenger.

Hughes after consulting the American delegation then presented a draft. Other drafts were made out. These three principle ones, the "Big Three" Hughes, Balfour and Kato wrote the treaty in secret sessions at the State Department and at Hughes' home.

They gave their approval December second, United States proposed that France be included in the treaty because of her Far Eastern interests. This was toward the end of negotiations. Great Britain and Japan acquiesced. Rene Viviani suggested that the protective features of treaty be extended to Asiatic mainland, apparently they would apply to French Indo-China, but this was rejected.

THREE DRUG STORES ROBBED CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Three East End drug stores were robbed shortly before last midnight, three men and a woman being forced to lie on the floor while the cash registers were rifled by three men who escaped with $115.

Bad Weather For Harding DAYTONA, FLA., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—President Harding today encountered the first bad weather of his vacation trip.

The houseboat of Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, with the president and members of his party aboard, was anchored early today above Seabreeze, having made the trip down the coast to Maitland Island, through the east coast canal and down the Halifax river lake yesterday and last night.

Owing to the bad weather officers of the Seabreeze Golf Club were unable to say whether the president would carry out his plan to come ashore and play a round of golf over the club course.

Killed By Automobile COLUMBUS, Samuel H. Altman, 78, retired farmer, whose body was found near his home on the Winchester pike, south of here, is thought to have been struck by an automobile.

HEAVY CASUALTIES IN JOHANNESBURG

JOHANNESBURG, UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA, March 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Casualties in the fighting between the striking miners and police had reached thirty-two killed and fifty-seven wounded by nine o'clock tonight (Friday) when the firing was still continuing. Of the thirty-two killed, nineteen were policemen.

By eleven o'clock, however, the streets had become absolutely deserted and the town was unannouncedly quiet. The public was forbidden use of the streets.

The workers' hall at Benoni is reported to have been hit by a bomb dropped from an airplane. The heaviest casualties in the district are believed to have been suffered in the extreme eastern section of the Rand.

Hoover To Remain In Cabinet

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Declaring President Harding had "strongly expressed the wish" that he remain in the cabinet, Secretary Hoover today informed Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, he could not accept the director generalship of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition to be held in Philadelphia in 1926.

SENATOR UNDERWOOD SAYS PACIFIC PACT REAL TREATY OF ARMS MEET

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Describing the four-power Pacific treaty as "the real treaty of peace" of the arms conference, Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the Democratic senate leader and a member of the American delegation to the conference, told the senate today that he would vote for the pact's ratification in the same spirit which actuated him to support the treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations.

The real issue, the Democratic leader declared, was whether the United States was ready to give its sanction to an arrangement for "peace by mutual understanding" or desired to continue "the opportunity for war that has threatened us in the past two decades."

Mr. Underwood asserted that he did not regard the treaty as an alliance, but added that even if it were, and were founded on arbitration, rather than force, he would support it.

To argue, on the other hand, that because it was not based on force, it was valueless was declared by the Alabama senator to be reverting to the philosophy of past ages.

Recounting how he had supported the League of Nations, he said he had approached the work of the arms conference ready to welcome any new effort to establish peace by international understanding rather than by the power of the sword.

"The four-power treaty," he continued, "represents a political settlement, which undoubtedly was necessary before the treaty providing for the limitation of armaments was signed."

"The terms of the treaty clearly call for a conference to consider difficulties that may arise. It is a conference in which all of the four powers must agree and none of the powers will be bound in advance in any way. In other words, the agreements that are reached must be by the unanimous consent of all."

"The opponents of the ratification of this treaty in the main appear to base their objections on two grounds, expressing positions that are opposed to the other. It is asserted that the treaty in effect is an alliance between the four great powers for offensive and defensive purposes, or, at least, it is contended he will be drawn into that position in the end and that we may be forced into war without our consent."

"I maintain that there is nothing in the treaty itself that justifies such an interpretation being placed upon it, that an agreement by a man or a nation to respect the rights of his neighbors is an obligation that relates to his own conduct and does not bind him to aggressive action because the other party to the contract whose rights he has agreed to respect becomes involved in difficulties."

"But the question is not left here. The foreign relations committee of the senate has moved a reservation to the treaty, which beyond a doubt will be accepted by the senate, which reads as follows:

"The United States understands that under the statement in the preamble or under the terms of this treaty, there is no commitment to armed force, no alliance, no obligation to join in any defense."

"When the treaty is ratified with this understanding on the part of our government, what ground is left to those who contend the treaty is an offensive and defensive alliance?" (Continued on Page Six)

Complaints Dismissed

Protest Joint Conference

ALTOONA, PA., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—A protest against revival of the joint conference between miners and operators in the central competitive field was sent today to Secretary of Labor Davis by G. Webb Shillingford, president of the Central Coal Association, Altoona, composed of central Pennsylvania coal operators.

Greek Cabinet To Resign

LONDON, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—According to a message received by Reuters from a Greek semi-official source, the cabinet of Premier Gounaris will resign as a result of the adverse vote yesterday in the chamber of deputies.

Athens, March 11.—The government suffered a defeat in the chamber of deputies yesterday when Premier Gounaris was refused a vote of confidence, the vote being 161 to 156.

Premier Gounaris prior to the vote explained in the assembly the outcome of his negotiations during his recent trip to London, Paris and Rome. He stated that, as the allies desired to establish peace in the Near East, he had accepted their mediation on condition that the allies agreed regarding the peace terms.

Greece must therefore await the results of the Paris conference on Near Eastern questions.

MAY CALL OFF CONFERENCE

LONDON, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—The Daily Mail today says that the refusal of the United States to participate in the Geneva conference so greatly deprives the conference of importance that some doubt is felt in political circles whether it will be held at all, and that its abandonment may be only a question of days.

The newspaper adds that by America's abstention the conference loses any utility it may ever have conceivably possessed and denounces it as a costly and grandiose scheme for humoring the Germans and the Bolsheviks.

BOMBAY, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Followers of Mahatma K. Gandhi, non-cooperationist leader, who is under arrest, today recalled a recent article in his newspaper in which he asked them to carry out "the whole constructive program with clock work regularity and speed like the Punjab express."

If he should be arrested, he was taken into custody at Ahmedabad, charged with sedition.

No Secret Notes Or Agreements He Asserts

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Secretary of State Hughes in a letter today to Senator Underwood, Democratic senate leader and arms conference delegate, took occasion to characterize intimations that the American delegates were induced to accept some plan for the four-power Pacific treaty cunningly contrived by others opposed to American interests as "a very poor and erroneous conception of the work in connection with the conference."

The secretary added that amenities of international intercourse precluded revealing the informal and confidential suggestions and conversations incident to the negotiations, but he asserted that a full disclosure of everything said or done would reveal derogatory to the part taken by the American delegates.

He asserted it would show no consideration or acceptance of any position or entirely consistent with the traditional policies of the American government.

The four-power pact itself requires no commentary, the secretary said, adding that no ingenuity in argument or hostile criticism can add to it or make its engagements greater than "its unequivocal language sets forth."

There are no secret notes or understandings, he asserted.

Row At Limerick Settled

BELFAST, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—A settlement of the trouble between the rival forces of the Irish Republican army in Limerick has been reached. Under the agreement both parties will evacuate the city.

LONDON, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Although peace is still unbroken in Limerick, some special correspondents report the situation as growing worse and the danger of a clash between the rival forces increasing. The correspondent of the Daily Mail declares that if the negotiations in Dublin fail, fighting between the free state troops and the dissident Irish Republican army forces seems only too likely.

The free state troops, he says, although probably twice as numerous as the dissidents, are in strong defensive positions where they can stay for weeks if necessary. The dissidents, however, can not stay indefinitely in the hotels and other lodging places because they can not pay the rates for long. They are already seizing provisions from local dealers.

Detectives Aided In Theft TOLEDO, O., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Four railroad detectives are said by James Hurst and Clifford Guncheon, under arrest charged with stealing $20,000 worth of cloth, to have assisted in the theft. The detectives were employed, they said, by the Detroit and Toledo shoe line from which company's rats the cloth was taken.

Rum Runners And Officers Engage In Revolver Battle

NEW YORK, Mar. 11.—Two young women and two men, said by police to be members of a Canadian rum-running gang, put up a spirited battle with revolvers last night when two detectives of the prohibition squad raided a house in Charlton street which they had been informed was used as a terminal for distributing liquor brought from Canada.

One of the detectives was shot in the shoulder before police reserves arrested three of the band. The other escaped. One thousand bottles of Scotch whiskey were confiscated. The detectives were admitted to the house by a young woman who gave her name as Marie Parnero, 27 years old. As they started up the stairs, another woman standing on the first floor opened fire. A moment later she was joined by two men who also fired several shots. The raiders returned the fire but took pains, they said, to avoid injuring the women.

The detectives continued to force their way up, the defenders retreating step by step. One of the men was seen to drop his revolver and appeared to be wounded. Reaching the second landing, the detectives found their quarry barricaded in a room. Police reserves arrived and broke into the room but the man believed to have been wounded had escaped over the adjoining roof. The woman and her other companion were huddled in a corner with revolvers leveled at the door.

At the police station one of the prisoners, Frank Delano, admitted, the police said, that he was a chauffeur engaged to bring whiskey to New York City from Canada.

"Does Potato Spraying Pay?"

Not so many years ago, and within memory of many of the older farmers of Scioto county the spraying of apple trees was a very rare farm practice and yet luscious fruit of splendid keeping quality was produced. In this age of farming and fruit production the fellow who does not follow a systematic program in spraying his fruit to combat the numerous insects and diseases never harvests clean, marketable fruit of good quality. This fact is known and generally recognized among fruit growers today, consequently the spraying of fruit, at least where grown to any extent, is a common practice.

You may be wondering what such an introduction has to do with answering the question, "Does Potato Spraying Pay?" We are merely fortifying ourselves against a possible doubt that may arise in the minds of potato growers when we offer the prediction that, unless conditions change there may come a time and that not far distant when spraying potatoes may be as common a practice as that of spraying fruit trees, and there will be but one reason for so doing, and that is because it pays.

Last year as a demonstration for his community and the county, Fred Mootz of Empire Grange community in cooperation with the Farm Bureau and the department of Entomology, Ohio State University, of which T. H. Parks is specialist, sprayed a two-acre plot leaving a one-tenth acre plot unsprayed as a check. The following report made by Mr. Mootz includes methods and materials used and results.

Number of times sprayed, three. Amount of spray solution used, two barrels per acre each application. Kind of material, Bordeaux Mixture 5-5-40 strength, plus 1-2 lbs. powdered Arsenate of Lead first application, Bordeaux only last two applications. Total cost of material per acre for the three applications, $5.50. Total time was 15 hours for three men or 45 hours for one man. Yield per acre unsprayed, 136 bu. 7 sprays, 154 bu.; increase of 18 bu. per acre which when sold at $1.75 per bushel amounts to $31.50 increase less the $5.50 equals $26.00 for 45 hours labor for one man or 57 1/2 cents per hour. Where is the farmer in Scioto county or any other county in Ohio who received this amount per hour for his labor the past year? You may decide for yourself whether or not spraying potatoes paid Mr. Mootz. It might be well to add that the first application was not applied until the potatoes were from 10 to 12 inches high (circumstances not permitting an application earlier), whereas it is recommended that spraying should begin when the plants are from 4 to 6 inches high and an application made every two weeks for at least four times. Mr. Mootz believes that by so doing his last year's increase can be easily doubled. He, as well as a half dozen or more of his neighbors, are planning on spraying this year. Six other communities in the county have potato spraying incorporated in their regular program of Farm Bureau Work.

The chief function of the spray program is to control "Tip Burn" which is ordinarily mistaken for early blight. "Tip Burn" is a disease that is spread by the insect leaf hopper which works on the under side of the leaves, hence, a special device spray rod and nozzles which will spray the under side of the leaves as well as the top must be used. This special rod when attached to the ordinary barrel spray does the work very satisfactorily.

By adding Arsenate of Lead to the Bordeaux mixture for the first one or two applications the flea beetle, which causes the pepper box appearance to the potato leaves and the common potato beetle are also controlled.

Permit us to say in conclusion, that, unless extreme thoroughness in spraying is kept in mind and then put into practice it is useless to spray at all.

The special spray rod used by Mr. Mootz may be seen at the Farm Bureau office. An effort is being made to have this special outfit made in Portsmouth.

"Tom Cuts vs. Rat Terriers"

An organized effort is being put forth by the Scioto Valley Grange to rid the community of rats, crows, hawks and sparrows. The community divisions are known as the "Tom Cuts" and "Rat Terriers" and according to the last report the former had a total of 1750 points and the latter a total of 1500 points (assuming that the rat has been killed), hawks, crows and sparrows.

Arrangements are being made by the community chairman of this work to hold demonstrations in every organized community in the county which will make it possible for any interested woman to attend where they may learn to make this valuable, yet inexpensive article, which make, possible accurate fitting in dress making.

A meeting has already been scheduled for the Sunshine Community at the home of Miss Gladys Coburn, Minford, Ohio, Saturday, March 18, at 1:00 o'clock p. m.

but officials of the company state they have no building plans for the immediate future.

The company has three oil stations in this city, besides a large warehouse, which, with the station tanks, gives them a storage capacity of 100,000 gallons. In addition, many gasoline pumps in the country districts, operated by others, are owned by the local concern.

Deal Means New Oil Station

The Portsmouth oil company, which is composed entirely of local men, has taken steps to expand its fast growing business through the recent purchase from the Peoples company of a seventy-six foot lot at the corner of Gallia and West avenues, New Boston, which will be ultimately used as a site for the erection of a handsome oil station. The deal for the lot was closed several days ago.

FROM DEATH CELL TO FREEDOM COHEN, CLEARED, MAKING GOOD

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
NEW YORK—After two years at the door of death—the grim, green door in Sing Sing—Joseph Cohen has come back.

Freed from the charge of murder which had been hanging over his head for nearly five years, he is hard at work on his old job—unloading chickens in the Washington Market. But he is no longer the same powerful, fearless "King Joe."

"Once," he says with a rasping voice, "I was within seven minutes of the chair. The governor's reprieve came just in time. If it had been delayed I wouldn't be here now."

Cohen had been convicted of instigating the Hoff murder which rivaled the Rosenthal case in popular interest. In 1917 he was sentenced to the death house.

Reveals Emotions

During His Trial

"I was in a daze from the start of the trial," said Cohen today. "The whole business was so unbelievable. But when I found myself in the little gray house up the river I knew that it was real—all too real."

"I couldn't bear to look at the bars. So I slept with my head toward the door. One night I heard a buzzing noise on the other side of the wall. It was the electric chair. I was nearly frantic."

"Thirteen men passed by my cell on the way to their death. As each would go by, there would be a noisy goodbye from the other men."

Most terrible

Sound in World

"Suddenly we would hear the buzz of the motor. It's the most terrible sound in the world—absolutely indescribable. We would lose our heads and scream. But—soon everything was quiet again."

"It is not the man in the chair who is being punished," Cohen said earnestly, "but the men who are left behind. There is a living death. Any of them would rather die immediately than linger in the death house."

"I wanted to die. The only thing that kept up my courage was the thought of my innocence and the stigma that would have been left on my family."

"One day a youngster broke loose from the keeper's grasp as he was being led to the chair. He ran down in front of my cell screaming. The boy was only 18. We began to yell. It was all over in a little while. The kid went through the little green door."

Days and Nights in Solitary Confinement

"None of us slept that night. I was taken from my cell and put in a dunkoon. It was punishment for cutting with the rest. For three days and four nights I lay in solitary. When I got out, I couldn't talk."

"Sometimes the men told jokes. Sometimes they laughed. But it wasn't often. They couldn't forget that little door and the buzzing noise."

Cohen shuddered. "There is something ironic," he continued, "about giving a man a good feed just before he goes to the chair. I have never been able to figure it out. I remember one youngster who didn't eat. He had been arrested with three others in a Bronx murder. His 'side-kicks' told me that he was innocent. He just read and wrote until his day came."

Finally Taken

From Death House

After Cohen was reprieved his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and he was taken from the death house.

"I was so weak that I couldn't walk," he said smiling for the first time. "After a couple of weeks in the hospital I began to come to and my courage returned. From then on I never gave up hope."

"And one day my dream came true. I was granted a new trial."

"Everybody in prison seemed to share my happiness. I was nursing diphtheria patients in the hospital when the doctor came in and told me to get ready. I was going to New York."

"It was the greatest moment of my life. I was released on bail. But it was only a few days ago that the courts finally freed me."

"I'm still dazed. But I'm going to start all over."

Shortly before his death Dr. Amow stated he had "been with the stock" 25 1/2 times.

In his memoirs he wrote of the time when "corn was a bit a bushel" and whiskey two bits a gallon.

STUDY OF JOSEPH COHEN BY ARTIST E. R. HIGGINS. SKETCHED AS COHEN TOLD HIS DRAMATIC STORY.

"IT'S NOT THE MAN IN THE CHAIR WHO IS BEING PUNISHED, BUT THE MEN WHO ARE LEFT BEHIND."

"THIRTEEN MEN PASSED BY MY CELL ON THEIR WAY TO DEATH."

"I COULDN'T BEAR TO LOOK AT THE BARS. SO I SLEPT WITH MY HEAD TOWARD THE DOOR."

"ONE NIGHT I HEARD A BUZZING NOISE ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WALL. IT WAS THE ELECTRIC CHAIR. I WAS NEARLY FRANTIC."

"SUDDENLY WE WOULD HEAR THE BUZZ OF THE MOTOR. IT'S THE MOST TERRIBLE SOUND IN THE WORLD—ABSOLUTELY INDESCRIBABLE. WE WOULD LOSE OUR HEADS AND SCREAM. BUT—SOON EVERYTHING WAS QUIET AGAIN."

"IT IS NOT THE MAN IN THE CHAIR WHO IS BEING PUNISHED, BUT THE MEN WHO ARE LEFT BEHIND. THERE IS A LIVING DEATH. ANY OF THEM WOULD RATHER DIE IMMEDIATELY THAN LINGER IN THE DEATH HOUSE."

"I WANTED TO DIE. THE ONLY THING THAT KEPT UP MY COURAGE WAS THE THOUGHT OF MY INNOCENCE AND THE STIGMA THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN LEFT ON MY FAMILY."

"ONE DAY A YOUNGSTER BROKE LOOSE FROM THE KEEPER'S GRASP AS HE WAS BEING LED TO THE CHAIR. HE RAN DOWN IN FRONT OF MY CELL SCREAMING. THE BOY WAS ONLY 18. WE BEGAN TO YELL. IT WAS ALL OVER IN A LITTLE WHILE. THE KID WENT THROUGH THE LITTLE GREEN DOOR."

"NONE OF US SLEPT THAT NIGHT. I WAS TAKEN FROM MY CELL AND PUT IN A DUNKOON. IT WAS PUNISHMENT FOR CUTTING WITH THE REST. FOR THREE DAYS AND FOUR NIGHTS I LAY IN SOLITARY. WHEN I GOT OUT, I COULDN'T TALK."

"SOMETIMES THE MEN TOLD JOKE. SOMETIMES THEY LAUGHED. BUT IT WASN'T OFTEN. THEY COULDN'T FORGET THAT LITTLE DOOR AND THE BUZZING NOISE."

COHEN SHUDDERED. "THERE IS SOMETHING IRONIC," HE CONTINUED, "ABOUT GIVING A MAN A GOOD FEED JUST BEFORE HE GOES TO THE CHAIR. I HAVE NEVER BEEN ABLE TO FIGURE IT OUT. I REMEMBER ONE YOUNGSTER WHO DIDN'T EAT. HE HAD BEEN ARRESTED WITH THREE OTHERS IN A BRONX MURDER. HIS 'SIDE-KICKS' TOLD ME THAT HE WAS INNOCENT. HE JUST READ AND WROTE UNTIL HIS DAY CAME."

FINALLY TAKEN FROM DEATH HOUSE

AFTER COHEN WAS REPRIEVED HIS SENTENCE WAS COMMUTED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT, AND HE WAS TAKEN FROM THE DEATH HOUSE.

"I WAS SO WEAK THAT I COULDN'T WALK," HE SAID SMILING FOR THE FIRST TIME. "AFTER A COUPLE OF WEEKS IN THE HOSPITAL I BEGAN TO COME TO AND MY COURAGE RETURNED. FROM THEN ON I NEVER GAVE UP HOPE."

"AND ONE DAY MY DREAM CAME TRUE. I WAS GRANTED A NEW TRIAL."

"EVERYBODY IN PRISON SEEMED TO SHARE MY HAPPINESS. I WAS NURSING DIPHTHERIA PATIENTS IN THE HOSPITAL WHEN THE DOCTOR CAME IN AND TOLD ME TO GET READY. I WAS GOING TO NEW YORK."

"IT WAS THE GREATEST MOMENT OF MY LIFE. I WAS RELEASED ON BAIL. BUT IT WAS ONLY A FEW DAYS AGO THAT THE COURTS FINALLY FREED ME."

"I'M STILL DAZED. BUT I'M GOING TO START ALL OVER."

Dr. C. C. Payne now senior house surgeon at the general hospital in Cincinnati, whose quick work with a pen knife saved the life of a small boy Wednesday, is well known here. Dr. Payne used his pen knife to operate on the boy to remove a peanut from his wind pipe. He saw that it would be impossible to save the boy's life if he waited for a nurse to bring his surgical instruments and then used his pen knife.

GOING AFTER "THE HIGHER-UPS"

By John Collins Jackson

"Catch the big liquor law violators first," seems to be the policy of the general government in enforcement of the eighteenth amendment by the Volstead law. This will meet the universal approval of our legal citizenry. It has not always been the practice of the courts, in all cases of lawlessness, according to common belief. For years we have had the complaint in this country that "there is one law for the poor man, and another for the rich man." That the laws were so manipulated that the big sinners escaped, and only the little ones were punished. There were instances in which this accusation appeared only too true. The notorious Harry K. Thaw case illustrates it.

The chief of police in Columbus announced a few days ago that the law enforcement department of the city government would clean up first on the big offenders, in the rum conspiracy, against our national Constitution; that to squelch one of the large malefactors, or a criminal of the upper class of this society in this traffic, is the equivalent of suppressing a dozen smaller fry. The Ohio State Journal editorially endorses this policy both for its justice and its wisdom. The Columbus Evening Dispatch notices contributors to its free-for-all columns that, while it will give space for the expression of honestly differing opinions on the eighteenth amendment, and the Volstead law, it will not publish anything that can be construed as encouraging liquor lawlessness, or disrespect toward the nationally adopted policy of prohibition.

Such straws are illustrative of the currents of public sentiment, which are setting in more strongly everywhere against the cry of the brewers and their devotees, that prohibition is a failure. The people of Scioto county, and outside readers of The Portsmouth Times, as well as, are numerous declaring themselves favorable toward the attitude of this paper in refusing to champion the disloyal element who would nullify the Constitution of the United States, at the behests of the deposed liquor trade. In fact, nine-tenths of the press of Ohio stand for impartial law-enforcement, whoever, or however influential, the law-breakers may be. It seems a hard lesson for the liquor element to learn, but they may just as well accept the fact now as later, that prohibition is here to stay. Common Pleas Judge C. M. Rogers, of Franklin county, is fostering respect for all of the laws of the land.

By showing that the prohibitory law is entitled to the same regard as the law against any other crime. He dishes out the penalties in the same way against liquor criminals that he would against other evil-doers. It is no uncommon thing for him to impose sentences of from $700 to $1,000—with jail penalty attached, according to the turpitude of the law-breakers. Neither rank nor sex avails against justice in his court. Some days ago a woman, who had been caught selling rum, hoped that she would get off easily "because she was a widow." She had no thought for other widows, whose sons she would debauch for her own gain. Judge Rogers fined her $800, and costs, and ordered her to jail till both are paid. In doing so he said: "The situation has resolved itself into a question of whether the courts, or the bootleggers and the whisky runners, are going to be supreme; and I intend to do my part to break this thing up." There is not a male or female respecter of law and order in Franklin county but that respects Judge Rogers more highly for his unwavering support of the law. We call upon the thousands here, who feel the same way toward our courts in doing their duty, to tell them so occasionally. Of course courageous officials will do their duty irrespective of such encouragement; but it is only fair that they should know that the will of the public is with them in upholding our government.

It would require several columns of this paper to report in detail all of the farious decisions of the courts in these last few weeks in dealing with liquor law-breakers according to their deserts. The American issue of this week gives a cheering sample of these sentences. It says: "Probably the heaviest sentence ever imposed on a dry law violator in this country was that assessed against Edward Donegan, by a New York Federal judge. The sentence was a fine of $65,000 and ten years in the federal prison at Atlanta. Donegan was one of the 'higher-ups' in the illegal booze business, and trafficked in stolen and forged liquor-withdrawal permits on a large scale. He was found guilty on 13 counts." The people will say, "Well done, honorable judge! A Daniel come to judgment!" Every such law enforcement makes us prouder of our nation. The safety of this republic rests with the courts in compelling respect for law, on which life depends, regardless of the rank of the offenders in social or financial circles.

Music Memory Contest

Second Week—March 12-18

The new numbers of the Music Memory Contest will be played to-morrow, Sunday, March 12, at all the church services and during the week in local motion picture theatres. The numbers are as follows:

1. Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana—Pietro Mascagni.
2. Largo from New World Symphony—Antonin Dvorak.
3. Humoresque—Antonin Dvorak.

The idea of a Music Memory Contest has met with a generous response from the public. It has already proved its worth in many communities in bringing beautiful music into the lives of all, and also in raising the standard of appreciation of the world's best music. It is highly desirable that we should all know more music and know more about music for general culture, not in the sense of creation nor yet performance, but for enabling everyone to become an intelligent listener to good music. This is the whole object of the Music Memory Contest. The giving of material prizes, announcement of which will be made later, serves merely as a happy climax to the two weeks study in music appreciation. The local music dealers have a complete stock of the records for all selections used in the Music Memory Contest and will be glad to play any of the records on request.

La Verendrye Discovers The Rocky Mountains

THE following synopsis of the second of the series of picturesque stories "Back-trailing On The Old Frontiers," appearing in Tomorrow Morning Sun and Times, will appear next Sunday.

On the first day of January 1743, the Chevalier de La Verendrye, French adventurer, caught the first glimpse of the Rocky Mountains obtained by a white man. After several days of cloudy weather, New Year's day dawned with clear sky. Soon after the little party of adventurers had mounted their horses and started westward on their journey toward the western sea, the sun's beams threw the dazzling peaks in diamond light. La Verendrye called the great range he had discovered, "The Shining Mountains," because of the glittering snow upon their slopes and crests. There is some controversy concerning where La Verendrye was when he first saw the Rockies. Story of explorer's adventures briefly told.

Miners' Union Is Willing To Join In A Conference

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 11.—The miners union of the Pittsburgh district will join in any conference or meeting of any kind with the operators, at any time or place "as has been announced and decreed by John L. Lewis, international president," said Robert R. Gibbons, district president of the United Mine Workers in a statement here today. The statement was in answer to one issued by the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association yesterday, in which the operators declared they were willing "to deal with our own men in Western Pennsylvania, union or non-union, on a working agreement," but would not meet the Union Mine Workers of America and the operators of the central competitive field to negotiate a four state wage agreement.

Mr. Gibbons said that the miners' district representatives "have had comparatively little information" from the operators, other than the "gleanings which worried through the public press."

"Therefore," he said, "we do not consider it official and cannot understand why our business should not be fully worked out in an official and proper manner in order that all facts and truths should be thoroughly understood by all concerned. There is no disposition at the present time on the part of the representatives of District No. 5 to take issue, believing that the unity and only thing is to meet in the usual conference manner so that we can fully discuss in an equitable manner the grave responsibilities confronting both parties."

MINISTERS GETTING READY FOR MEMORABLE REVIVAL; SUNDAY SERVICES IN LOCAL CHURCHES

Extensive preparations are being made for the annual revival meetings which are to be conducted in the various churches of the city and community during the four weeks closing with Easter Sunday.

The special committee appointed by the ministerial association is busy at arranging for the pulpit exchanges to be made on Sunday, March 19, and also on the following three Friday evenings. During these three weeks they are planning to hold about 1500 or 2000 neighborhood prayer meetings in the home of the Christian people.

These neighborhood meetings will be a wonderful help toward the spiritual uplift of the community, and it is doubtful whether we could do anything that would be more effective in offsetting the crime wave, that we are hearing so much about, and for arousing the people of the community out of their state of religious indifference, which has been so marked during the past two or three years.

Tomorrow, when you attend the services at the church of your choice, tell your pastor, or some member of the proper committee in your church, that you would welcome one or more of these prayer meetings in your home.

The value of such meetings will be inestimable, both for your own home and for the entire community.

It would seem that no earnest Christian would want to pass through these coming weeks without having had some real part in making the meetings the success which they so much deserve.

Speak a helpful word to your pastor, your friend or your neighbor. BE A BOOSTER!

We invite the people of our section of our section of the city to join one of our large and enthusiastic classes. You will enjoy the association and the study.

After you have attended Sunday school do not go away without leaving a gospel sermon on a subject vital to your eternal interests. Jesus established the church and it is duty of all to help perpetuate it by attending its services at least once a Sunday when possible. If every one were to do just what you do, would the church win the world. Come on and help make the church a conquering force.

To Announce Findings In Week

PAINEVILLE Findings of Professor M. H. Bradley in his inquiry into the week last week when 16 persons were killed, probably will be announced Monday.

Large Senior And Junior Chorus Choirs

Sunday night at the seven o'clock service at the United Brethren church, corner of Seventh and Gay streets, the newly organized Junior Choir will make its first public appearance. It is anticipated that at least thirty boys and girls and young people will be present to take part in the special Gospel Anthem prepared for Sunday night.

Last Sunday night the entire choir loft was filled to its capacity and some had to occupy the seats to the right of the organ. The special numbers are not difficult, but very beautiful, and it is hoped that the ten additional chairs placed to the right of the organ will be occupied this coming Sunday night. In addition to the splendid congregational singing and gospel anthems by both choirs, Mrs. Philip Knost and Mrs. Geo. White will sing Rathburn's duet, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and other musical features will be added making a program of music pleasing to the diversified tastes of the large congregations that usually attend these popular Sunday evening services. The service throughout will be evangelistic in nature and the pastor will speak briefly on "The Personal Application of the Golden Rule."

Much Interest In Terminal Revival

The first week of the revival at the Terminal church has been marked by good attendance and attentive interest. All have entered heartily into the song service, and the messages of the preacher have been thoughtfully received. The special music furnished by Manly church choir on Tuesday night, and by our Saturday afternoon, Blue Bird Girls.

There is a place here for you.

Last night the Junior League furnished a special song. The sermon subject was "The Deadly Power of Sin." The pastor showed the devilishness of sin, and how it gains its power over its victims so gradually that they do not realize their danger. Then he told how sin is slanting God out of the life, kills all that is best in life, and in the end leads to eternal spiritual death.

"The most dangerous thing about sin," he said, "is its deadly paralyzing effect on its victim. A man freezing to death has an overwhelming desire to sleep. To sleep means sure death, but the cold has such a numbing influence that he cannot resist the desire. So sin, when it has a man in its power, paralyzes his will until he cannot break its grip on him, except by a supreme effort. It is a dangerous thing to put off accepting God for a single day, for every day we live in sin, it is getting a stronger grip on us, and it is harder for us to break away."

There will be no service tonight. Services Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, and every evening next week, except Saturday, at 7:15. Sickened, spoiled some of our plans for special music this week, but we hope to have something special every evening next week. You are invited to come every night.

"IS THERE A LITERAL HELL?"

Because of the questions that have come to the pastor of the First Baptist church, corner of Gallia and Waller, he has announced that his subject for next Sunday evening, at 7:15, will be "Future Punishment, or Is There a Literal Hell?" The public is most cordially invited to come and hear this great question carefully, honestly and fearlessly discussed.

"WELCOME SUNDAY" AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

In the workings of the First Christian Bible school, the Efficiency Committee has planned for another great day Sunday, and in their planning they were happy to have with them again, C. M. Hewland, Superintendent of the school, who gladly loaned his able assistance to the committee in planning for the day. It had already been named "Welcome Sunday" and the program pretty well in hand and no doubt the folks who observed the splendid program on last Lord's Day will be anxiously awaiting and watching for the "different" plan for this Sunday.

It is planned that no man or woman, boy or girl, will be able to get in out of the school without being made to feel that the spirit of welcome has simply saturated the entire atmosphere in and about the corner of Third and Gay, and no doubt there will be many who will have that long-remembered sensation to come again. It has always been the policy of First Christian to cordially welcome every one who comes, no matter what their station, but Sunday will be a special day to stress that particular point.

Then the morning service will be just as cordial and every member of the school will be invited to stay for the communion service. There will be no preaching service in the morning. At the evening service, the pulpit supply committee, have announced that Rev. Small will preach and the choir has been preparing some special music for the occasion. It will be a great day at the "church of the cordial welcome."

WILL ORGANIZE A JUNIOR CHURCH

After half hour of worship at the regular service in Bigelow church Sunday morning, the children will retire to the "upper room" where L. E. Butler will organize a Junior church. With the hearty cooperation of parents it is predicted this will prove a big success as it is desirable that the entire family be trained and developed spiritually. It is pointed out that children especially need symmetrical training.

COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT SUNDAY

The presentation of Gail's "Holy City" by the Ladies' Mission at the First Presbyterian Church tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock, as a complimentary concert to Rev. and Mrs. D. C. Boyd, will be a real artistic triumph. Under the direction of Foster Krake, the Community Chorus has assumed real proportions, and they have entered into their rehearsals with enthusiasm and abandon. Members of the chorus will be drawn from every church in the city.

The soloists for "The Holy City" will embrace many of Portsmouth's best known vocalists: Mrs. O. J. Deitzler, Miss Myrtle Ziegler, Mrs. B. K. Winter, Miss Ruth Fitch, Mrs. Charles L. Stork, Mrs. E. H. Bailey, Mr. Fred Lorey, Mr. J. E. Lodwick, Mr. Pierce Hilbert and Mr. Walter Adams.

Mrs. J. M. Stockham, the well-known organist of First Church will preside at the organ, supported by Miss Doris Moore at the piano. They have several instrumental numbers together, and there will be also an ensemble number, "The Heavens are Telling," by Haydn, played as a prelude, which will include Foster Krake and Miss Alice Blake, violins; Mr. R. E. Kuhn, cornet; Mrs. Stockham, organ and Miss Moore, piano.

As this is a complimentary concert no offering will be taken during the afternoon. The Ladies' Mission and First Church extend the music loving public of Portsmouth a warm invitation to attend and enjoy the afternoon with them.

Quartette To Sing

All members of the Manly Sunday school should take notice. The girls' double quartette that sang so well at the "Parent-Teachers' social meeting Monday evening at Garfield building will sing at Manly Sunday school tomorrow morning. These eight girls have been well trained by Miss Grace Mooney who is teacher of music in the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades at Garfield building. James Pugh will also sing after the lesson. Those failing to be present at Manly Sunday school tomorrow morning will miss a rare treat. The girls belonging to the quartette are: Maribel Wheeler, Helen Whitner, Lillian Newman, Ethel Skaggs, Elizabeth Donnell, Kathryn Lang, Emma Lee Stafford and Maeda Storms.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

THANK YOU
You can probably arrange with the marriage license clerk to keep the license a secret for awhile, if you have a good reason for doing so. However, I don't believe in keeping marriages a secret. Here's your pie recipe:

One pint of milk and a square of chocolate heated, add 3-4 cup of sugar, yolk of two eggs, one teaspoon of vanilla, thickened with one large tablespoon of corn starch. Bake in a crust baked and fill with the above filling. Beat whites to a stiff froth, brown in oven. This is delicious.

GOLDEN RULE
I can't improve on the definition given in the dictionary, which says that a snob is one who places a false and vulgar estimate on material possessions, and fashionable standing, especially such a one, who modifies his mental or outward attitude towards persons or matters because of wealth status, etc., or lack of them.

DAILY READER
A Daily Reader—I do not know the address of the company you mentioned. Inquire at one of the local millinery stores.

Worried Mother—I can't give you much encouragement, or tell you what to do under the circumstances. You should have looked ahead a little before you decided to marry a widower with children. It is hard enough to raise one's own children, and almost impossible to get along with rebellious stepchildren. They usually make up their minds right at the beginning they are not going to like their step-mother, and they very seldom do love her, especially when they are old enough to know that she is taking their mother's place. Of course your case is aggravated by the fact that you have children of your own and your husband and his children will always think that you are partial to them no matter how hard you try to treat them all alike. Then too when a man marries for a house-keeper, as your husband seems to have done, it is useless to expect him to take your part. If you can manage things for a few years longer, the older children will be out of the way. If they are not married they will probably be out doing for themselves, and away from the house most of the time.

World's Best-Known Woman Preacher Will Address Biennial Y. W. C. A. Convention

Miss Royden in her cleric costume

Copyright by Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

Miss Maude Royden, famous woman preacher of City Temple, London, who is to speak at the Y. W. C. A. convention in Hot Springs.

THAT the real inspiration of the Woman Movement over the world today is not a desire for higher wages or shorter hours but rather a resentment against society for perpetually denying their humanity is the way A. Maude Royden, England's most noted authority on women and the world's best known woman preacher, analyzes the cause of unrest among her sex.

This famed and fearless woman is coming to America to give a series of lectures before the seventh National Biennial Convention of the Young Women's Christian Association which will assemble at Hot Springs, Ark., April 20-25th, girls and women from every city, town, county and college which has a Y. W. C. A.

Miss Royden says "this denial of woman's humanity is age-long and is found in every social system, in almost every religion and in almost every philosophy. Women want to be recognized as human beings and not as a sex or instruments to another's end instead of an end in themselves."

Miss Royden is the daughter of Sir Thomas Royden, formerly Lord Mayor of Liverpool. Though she is frail of frame, small of stature, the magic of her voice, the sincerity of her speech, her logical mind and her daring courage, cause one to forget these handicaps.

She is a member of the Church of England and by her activities in leading a movement to induce her church to admit women preachers has tremendously stirred that historic body.

Miss Royden preached her first sermon in a remote village as unofficial curate to the Rev. Hudson Shaw. This sermon was the beginning of her fame. Since then she has filled many pulpits. She was the first woman to fill the pulpit of the City Temple of London, as pulpit associate to Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, now a resident of New York.

Since the upheaval in the woman's world brought on as an aftermath of the great war, Miss Royden has gained unequalled fame as friend, confidant and counselor to her sex.

In her series of talks before the convention, Miss Royden will challenge women and girls to come out "in the open" and declare for Christianity in all phases of life—personal, social, national and international.

I can't remember the day of the week, but they were killed the latter part of the year 1910.

Dear Dolly—As you have answered so many letters please answer mine. Please explain to me the meaning of the word snob. I hear so many people say this word is full of snobbish men, women, girls and boys.

I can't improve on the definition given in the dictionary, which says that a snob is one who places a false and vulgar estimate on material possessions, and fashionable standing, especially such a one, who modifies his mental or outward attitude towards persons or matters because of wealth status, etc., or lack of them.

Miss Dolly Wise—Could you please give me the address of the organization of Public Efficiency which is interested in the compulsory education law in the common school. P. C.

Write to Miss Lucia B. Johnson, Ohio Institute for Public Efficiency, Columbus, Ohio, and she will give you the desired information.

Dear Dolly—Please tell me how to take old wall paper off a wall.

The quickest and best way to get old paper off the walls is to soak it with lukewarm water. Soak about five strips before you start and then keep it pretty well soaked a couple of strips ahead of you, and it will peel off just like the skin off a sausage. The secret lies in keeping it well soaked. Don't have the water too hot or it will soften the paste and make it stick that much tighter. If you have a nice floor you will have to cover it with an oil cloth or a tarpaulin. Some claim that if you add saleratus to the water the paper will come off as slick as a whistle.

Dear Dolly—I would love for you to put in the paper how to make crackers.

ISABEL OSTRANDER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Fay Tudor, wealthy orphan, suffers a nervous breakdown in France after learning of the death in battle of her brother, Wilbur. She returns to the Tudor estate in Sandy Cove and is met by her aunt, an attractive widow, Mrs. Clara Tudor, and the latter's daughter, Laurel. The summer colony is frightened by the reported presence of a "wild man" whom Fay believes she has seen peering in the windows of the Tudor house.

Sheriff Hulise and his friend, Sergeant John Barry, a New York detective, investigate. Fay is attracted by the personality of Captain Warren, her brother's friend, who was with Wilbur when he fell. On the night of Mrs. Tudor's dance, Kenneth Clayton, wealthy philanthropist, who is thought to be in love with Mrs. Tudor, proposes to Fay. She rejects him. After the dance, before retiring, Laurel confesses to Fay that she is in love with Harry Calhoun, an old love of Fay's but for whom she has ceased to care. Fay congratulates Laurel and wishes her happiness. The girls sleep in the same room. In the morning, Laurel is found dead from asphyxiation and murder is suspected. Fay breaks the news to her Aunt Clara. Clayton offers his assistance to Fay and together they endeavor to confirm the murder theory and express wonder at Fay's escape.

A professor in chemistry called in on the case ascertaining that the murder was committed by the use of carbon monoxide gas.

This gas came from the exhaust pipe of an automobile and footprints of a woman's slippers were seen in the garage. The detective found the slippers, water-soaked in Fay's room and she admitted they were hers.

Fay denies connection with the crime. The detective searching for clues finds a gas mask on the mantel and seeks to find finger prints on it. Finger prints on the mask and those on a cold cream jar belonging to Fay prove the same. Detective Barry discovered strong sleeping powders belonging to Fay have been tampered with and is questioning her when Mrs. Tudor interrupts and demands that the case be dropped.

The detective refuses to drop the case but assures Fay that he is not guilty of the murder. Searching party later start out to locate the den of the mysterious professor. Fay knows the cave and takes Captain Warren with her by a short cut ahead of the others.

The professor proves to be Fay's brother, thought to have been killed during the war. Questioning Fay further, the detective learns that she changed beds with her cousin the night of the murder—the same night Fay rejected Kenneth Clayton when he asked her to marry him. The change in beds meant death to her cousin and life to Fay.

CHAPTER XII

At ten o'clock the following morning Sandy Cove smiled peacefully in the golden sunshine.

Within the decorously shaded parlors of the Tudor house six persons were gathered: Mrs. Tudor herself, her niece Fay, Captain Warren, Kenneth Clayton, Sheriff Hulise, and Sergeant John Barry. The latter was seated at the long magazine table in the center of the room with a sheet of notes spread out before him, and it was toward him that all eyes were directed. None appeared to notice the pastboard boxes of various sizes which flanked the notes upon the table, and certain it was that neither the sheriff and Barry himself knew that outside the door two husky constables waited with a large framed beetle-headed woman for the signal to add themselves to the gathering.

"The sheriff and I have asked you to meet us all together," began Barry, pleasantly enough, "in order that we may tell you the result of our investigations of yesterday into the death of Miss Laurel Tudor. It was murder, of course, but her death was never intended. You all know the method by which the crime was committed, but what I think that none of you know is that the carbon monoxide was meant not for her but for her cousin, and the fact that the two young ladies changed beds during the night was all that saved Miss Fay Tudor from the fate meted out to her, although it rebounded upon an innocent victim innocent in that she had aroused no enmity in the heart of the murderer. When I said that 'none of you knew this,' I meant none except one, for the guilty person is in this room at the present moment."

Fay sat clutching the arms of her chair tightly, but she made no outward move and her eyes never left the face of the detective. Clayton crowded a sudden exclamation, but Captain Warren sat immovable, although a slight flush crept upon his cheek. Mrs. Tudor started to her feet with a swift cry.

"Please sit down, Mrs. Tudor," Barry's tones were sympathetic but firm. "I know how you must be feeling at this moment, but I shall not keep you long in suspense.

ring upstairs—the murderer sped to the room formerly occupied by the young man whom all were believed to be dead and, obtaining his gas mask, returned to the room.

"There this person went straight to the bed ordinarily occupied by Miss Laurel, touched the hair—which in the dark could not have been detected from that of Miss Fay, for both are of the same texture—and fitted the mask carefully over her face.

"You can figure the rest out for yourselves—the murderer's advance to the other bed; the insertion of the tube between the lips of the unconscious girl; the application of a bandage over her nostrils so that, perforce, she must breathe in the deadly gas; the departure from the room for a certain, well-calculated period; the return; removal of the mask from one face and landing from the other; the hurried exit with the container."

"But the murderer had made the fatal mistake of trusting to the sense of touch alone. It was upon the wrong face that the mask was adjusted, upon the wrong face that the bandage was placed, and into the wrong lips that the tubing was inserted."

"Stop! I can hear no more," the ringing cry came from Mrs. Tudor's white lips, and she started again from her chair.

"Why not?" Barry asked, coolly. "These are the facts of the case, and I bring it back to you before your mind? Woman, you are the murderer of your own daughter."

A swift change had come over the countenance of Mrs. Tudor, a hideous, malevolent gleam which youth and prettiness. She sat rigid, her blue eyes fixed with a sort of mocking mirth upon the face of Barry.

"There was no thought of murder in your mind when your niece returned from Europe," Barry continued. "You felt secure in your coming happiness, but the mind of a woman in love is more keenly intuitive than at normal times, and within a few days you realized something which your niece did not dream of—that the man you loved and hoped to marry had turned from you."

It was not Fay Tudor alone whom you had then turned to the point of murder. It was the common enemy of all women of middle life, youth's youth."

"You planned to kill her on the night of the dance, planned to stab her. I think with the dagger from the hall arrangement of weapons which I found concealed in your room an hour ago, and to that end you slipped into the pantry when Louise's attention was engaged elsewhere and put into the hot milk, which the young ladies were to drink, six powders of the drug which Miss Fay had brought from Paris for her cousin, a triple dose for each, so that neither would awaken if you entered the room."

"You meant the affair to look like a suicide, but during the dance you learned from the lips of Professor Senyuhov of an easier method, and one practically safe from discovery, as you thought. You determined immediately upon its adoption, and that determination was crystallized by a conversation you overheard upon the little porch which opens off the breakfast room. You planned it down to the most minute detail, even to the use of the gas mask to save your daughter from harm. After your guests had gone you slipped down here to the garage from the pocket of your motor coat which hung there. You found there, under the seat, a pair of Miss Fay's cast-off slippers, which Louise hoped to have stretched for her own use, and you managed to put them on with a fairly thorough possible footprints which might be left on the ground."

"You committed the crime, making the fatal mistake which I have already described and which you learned of in the morning when you heard the voice of the very girl you thought you had slain. I could find it in my heart to pity you at that moment were it not that you planned immediately to throw the crime upon the shoulders of Miss Fay. You recalled her slippers, which were still soaping wet, and you had them covered beneath your negligee, when you descended admittance to the room where your daughter lay dead; you thrust them under the bed when you knelt sobbing beside her body."

"Yes! I did!" Mrs. Tudor sprang from her chair and peered wildly at Kenneth Clayton, who, he said, was guarding her with eyes of suspicion, and then she turned to Barry, who was standing before her, and she said: "I heard by accident that she had a cousin had changed beds with her on the night of the murder. Then all was clear to me."

"The low light at the farther end of the hall did not penetrate the room, but the murderer had gone too far to retreat now, for already the fumes of the poison gas were escaping from the family dressing and started continuing. Putting it down upon the floor just outside the door, the container had once held oil, and the mark if it is still visible on the

DRESS-UP WEEK WILL BE FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Each succeeding day brings evidences of more stores entering into the plan of Dress-Up Week and each day finds more people receptive to the Dress-Up idea.

Dress-Up Week is the time to forget and banish into history winter and all its attending faults and hardships.

Spring garments, a coat of paint and a little time and thought here and there will dress up ourselves, our premises and our city. If the whole city will enter into the spirit of Dress-Up Week, Portsmouth will be transformed in the twinkling of an eye. Dress-Up your home, clean up the city and let's have our face and hands washed clean ready to welcome spring.

The stores are fixing exceptional displays of spring merchandise and the big musical treat in store for thousands of people who will gather in the business districts Tuesday evening will be sufficient announcement that spring is here with a vengeance.

Don't miss the fine window trims, nor the novelty music Tuesday evening at the official opening of Dress-Up Week.

Saw Plesiosaurian Monster Off Patagonia 16 Years Ago

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—The plesiosaurian monster seen in Patagonia, according to reports from the Buenos Aires zoological garden, is not a myth, snake or a turtle, in the belief of Lieutenant Commander O. Bevilacqua, now at the Philadelphia navy yard. The naval officer said today that he had seen a monstrous animal off the coast of Patagonia 16 years ago that resembled descriptions of that reported seen recently by an Englishman named Sheffield in the same locality.

Lieutenant Bevilacqua, who is commander of the U. S. S. Kaweah, said that during 1906 while in the straits of Magellan, about 500 yards off the coast of Patagonia, he saw the monster one afternoon. "The visibility was high and I do not believe I could have been mistaken," he said. "I was scanning the sky-line toward the shore and I heard a splash and saw a huge ice covered boulder splash into the sea from the high rocky shore. A moment later a large animal appeared at the point from which the boulder had dropped and looked out toward me."

"The head was like that of a horse, and the neck was fully 30 feet long. It was not a turtle because turtles do not have necks of that length. I am equally sure that it was not a snake because snakes do not live in the ice and snow."

"The head woman never recovered her mind before her death," he doesn't matter. Barry's tone was grave. "She escaped trial here but she has gone to a higher court before an infallible judge, and we know that her sentence will be a just one."

Montagu Justifies Position

LONDON, March 11. (By the Associated Press) Edwin S. Montagu, in speaking before the Liberal Club at Cambridge, his constituency, today justified the policy he had pursued as secretary of state for India and declared the doctrine of "constructive solidarity" involved in connection with his resignation. Montagu had been down the talking code in the Lloyd George cabinet, as

"My disappearance," said Mr. Montagu, "has nothing to do with the doctrine of collective responsibility. It is an effort to preserve this government from the fate that must attend it."

"You know how dangerous it is for the government to be collapsed. The liberal members see their colleagues disappearing one by one. The conservatives have a lot to swallow. The 'die hards' have shown a complete lack of political sagacity. They are the most dangerous element in the political life of this country and to them the great genius presiding over the country's destinies has given a head-on charge."

ance to stand upon? None that I can see.

"On the other hand, it is asserted that, as the treaty does not bind the high contracting parties to use force in carrying out its terms, and because they can not in the future be bound to any action until their free consent is first obtained, that it means nothing; that it is worse than useless to sign it, and therefore it should be defeated. To my mind, this argument is the last stand of the men of the old school, the school of thought that has been dominant in the government of this world for the last four thousand years; the philosophy that believes that the world can and must be governed only by force, and that agreements, to be binding, must have the power of force behind them. If this were true, it would destroy all the faith of the Christian nations of the world in their efforts to obtain peace by mutual understanding."

"You may call the Versailles treaty an alliance. I voted for it because I believed that it was a sincere effort to secure the peace of the world by mutual understanding. The present treaty is not an alliance, but if it were an alliance, intended to keep the peace, through arbitration, rather than through force, I should support it. The dangers of past alliances have not been due to the fact that they were binding agreements between the powers that signed them, but because they contemplated the use of force for the benefit of signatory powers."

"An alliance based on right and justice between the nations, intended to aid in securing the peace of the world, could not be offensive to us. The first step in any effort to keep the peace among nations must be based upon mutual agreement which represents the wishes of others. The four-power pact does that. If the senate of the United States ratifies this pending treaty I am fully satisfied that there will disappear not only any real cause for war, but there will no longer exist the opportunity for war that has threatened us in the past two decades, and peace will be established between the four great sea powers that now control the destinies of the Pacific ocean."

"This is the real issue involved in the four-power treaty. The issue of peace in the Orient, the issue of safety to our country, the issue of the lives of our young men, who should be saved from this danger for the upbuilding of a greater America."

"A number of treaties were negotiated at the conference in Washington on the limitation of armaments, but this four-power treaty is the real treaty of peace."

Wireless Entertainers To Demand Compensation

NEW YORK, March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Appreciative, but non-paying wireless amateurs, who have been sitting at home and listening to world famous entertainers face an edict of the Actors' Equity Association that such performers must be paid for their work.

that those who talk or sing in the transmitting apparatus must be compensated. In the last few months there have been numberless free concerts, free stage performances, free lectures and other features supplied to the owners of radio-phones. The ether waves carrying these entertainers have been picked up hundreds, even thousands, of miles distant by receiving sets, which are as common as home brew outfits.

IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRIAL SITUATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Indication of improvement in the general industrial situation was seen by officials in the report today of February postal savings transactions, showing a slight increase in deposits over withdrawals for the first month since January, 1921. The total net deposits on March 1 was shown to be approximately $145,000,000. Substantial increase in deposits was reported generally by the larger postoffices, it was said, but these were largely offset by the decrease at the smaller offices. Considerable improvement in the latter was expected, however, with the approach of spring.

The Decalogue

The ten commandments occupy nearly an entire chapter in the Bible. Briefly stated, they are boiled down to these short sentences. 1. I am the Lord thy God, thou shalt not have strange gods before me. 2. Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain. 3. Remember thou keep holy the Sabbath day. 4. Honor thy father and thy mother. 5. Thou shalt not kill. 6. Thou shalt not commit adultery. 7. Thou shalt not steal. 8. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. 9. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife. 10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods. The third commandment has not been changed in so far as it obliges us to worship God, but it has been changed as to the day when that worship should be given, namely not on the Sabbath, but on Sunday.

Philip Rheinfrank Who Died In Piketon Was Born In Mid-Ocean

Special To Times

Fire Destroys Garage, Auto, Etc.

Damage estimated at close to $2500 was caused about 10:15 Friday night when fire of an unknown origin destroyed a frame garage, Buick Six touring car, several chests of carpenter tools and some lumber in the rear of the Charles Conklin home, 1028 Kinney's Lane.

The glare of the flames attracted the attention of Mr. Conklin a short time after he retired for the night. It only took him a few minutes to jump into his clothes and get to the burning garage. The fire was burning with much headway on that side of the garage that housed the Buick. A Maxwell touring car on the opposite side of the garage was pushed after he had given up all hope of saving the Buick machine which is a 1920 model, but in good condition.

One entire side of the garage was afire when Mr. Conklin discovered the fire. An alarm was sounded and two fire companies responded. Although the firemen had to lay hose from a fire plug in front of Hendstead hospital and another line from a plug on Kinney's Lane east of Waller they had two streams on the burning structure within a few minutes. The frame garage burned rapidly and was beyond saving when the firemen got the water on the flames.

There was a high wind at the time and sparks were carried for some distance. No buildings were close to the garage and as other structures were soaked by the rain yesterday evening the sparks caused no damage.

Besides the Buick touring car Mr. Conklin had several chests of valuable carpenter tools and about $200 worth of lumber stored in the garage

In addition to a bicycle which was also destroyed.

Mr. Conklin who is a well known carpenter has $800 insurance on the garage and contents, the expiration date of the policy falling on next Thursday.

Mr. Conklin owns four dogs and neighbors attracted to the fire scene took three of the dogs away from their dog house near the garage. Rex, another hound escaped their attention and he remained fastened to the burning building all during the fire. Luckily his several foot chain allowed him to get away a short distance, but not far enough to prevent the flames from scorching the hair on his face and head. He was found after the fire, the animal not having withstood once during the fire.

World War Hero Accused Of Killing The Mother Of Child-Wife In Barnabus, W. Va.

The Huntington Herald Dispatch this morning said:

"Anger at his mother-in-law for interfering in his family affairs yesterday morning caused Mason Jackson, 27, World War veteran, to shoot and instantly kill Mrs. Mary Hickman, 33, at Barnabus, W. Va., according to information communicated by police to Mrs. Minnie Jackson, pretty sixteen-year-old child-wife, when she descended from a Logan train at the local Chesapeake & Ohio station last night on route from Barnabus to Winchester, Ky.

"After learning details of the tragedy enacted at her home shortly after her departure, the pretty little child-wife suffered a complete breakdown but refused all comfort. She insisted on remaining at the local station to await the first train back to Barnabus. She wanted to go to her dead mother, she wept.

"The story of the tragedy is one of hero worship, child love and tragedy with grief predominating. According to details of the affair gathered by local police, the shooting was the result of a family quarrel. Jackson returned in 1920 after eighteen months fighting in France. A splendid figure of war and romance about him, she fell desperately in love with him. They were married on May 21, 1920, she told police last night.

"Unaware of the tragedy which had robbed her of her mother and caused her husband's arrest on a murder charge, the pretty little child-wife came to Huntington. The train was met by police who had been informed of details of the tragedy. Mrs. Jackson went bitterly and refused to be comforted when told of the tragedy.

"Your dear mother," she cried. "She was so good to me. She thought about everything." She continued, as she exhibited the following note which her mother had hastily written on the back of a card just before the train left:

"To Whom It May Concern:—

"Conductor:—Please show this girl the right changes to make in going to Winchester, Ky. She has never traveled before."

"The stricken girl refused to go to a hotel or to either the Union Mission or Salvation Army, insisting on remaining in the station waiting room until the first train left for Barnabus.

"Although only fourteen years old at the time of her marriage, she told police that her life was one of complete happiness until recently. Then she had quarreled with her husband and last Sunday she said she slapped her.

"The mother furnished funds for the trip and yesterday morning accompanied her to the station at Barnabus where she saw her little daughter safely started on her first long journey. After watching the train out of sight, the mother started back home when she met her son-in-law who was very angry because his wife had gone away.

"According to Logan county authorities, a quarrel ensued and the son-in-law pulled a pistol and fired twice, instantly killing Mrs. Hickman.

"Authorities were immediately notified of the murder and started in pursuit of Jackson. He was apprehended within a half mile of the scene of the tragedy. Logan county authorities stated last night. He was taken to Logan and lodged in the Logan jail."

Fraternal Orders Must Pay Taxes

COLUMBUS, O., March 11.—(By the Associated Press)—A law enacted a number of years ago for the amending of the state constitution in 1912 was held to be unconstitutional by Attorney General John G. Margot Asquith is defending the younger generation. She says no morals are no worse than they were 25 years ago. That is true enough. Our morals are no worse; but our farmers are.

BLUE BLOOD AND RED

THE British theory of turning a commoner into a nobleman is quite interesting. Though Lascelles is the son of an earl he is a commoner, unless being created a Knight of the Garter has altered his status along with his marriage. However, on the death of his father he will succeed to the earldom and become a nobleman.

Whether there is any particular sensation felt in the transition, when it takes place, we find no information. It may be supposed that the blood takes on an indigo tint to denote the change, but as to that we are not assured. While a commoner can become a nobleman, either by birth or by loyal favor, the calamity of having the throne line mixed with anything short of royal blood is carefully guarded against. Princess Mary when she married was required to renounce for herself and her children all claims to succession to the throne. Just what would happen if a little common yet virile blood got mixed up in a king is not stated and we shall not know, because it isn't done.

Yet being of royal blood does not seem to guarantee a continuance. Contamination may creep in. Both Mary and Lascelles are said to trace their descent from Henry VII. Some place along the way Lascelles' ancestry slipped. Mary's didn't. In hunting an ancestor one is picked out who has been conspicuous, though we cannot imagine that there could be much pride in having had any of the Henry's as a progenitor. Yet we never heard of a family boasting of descent from someone who was hung. Usually it is a king or something of the kind and there is such a liking for that sort of thing that most any kind of a king will do.

THE AMERICAN HOME

THE old American home, with its religious training, was the most potent influence in the prevention of crime and the development of good citizenship, said Judge Scanlan, of Chicago, and he spoke with full knowledge of the facts.

Those who have had good home life and religious training seldom come to court, and if they do it is for some trifling offense, and they are never offenders a second time.

If parents would give more time to home-making, and if they realized the importance of the Sunday School in the making of good citizenship, there would be fewer boys in the juvenile courts.

LECTURES STILL POPULAR

THERE have been fewer lectures by distinguished foreigners this season than there were last year. A well-known English novelist, about to visit the United States, announces that he will not appear on the lecture platform. Are lectures losing their popularity?

So far as those delivered by persons whom audiences pay to see rather than to hear are concerned, they probably are. But there is no waning of interest in really instructive lectures.

The country apparently has been surfeited with famous foreigners. Too many came over a year or two ago. Some of them spoke English so imperfectly that they could not be understood when they attempted to lecture in our language, and when they talked in their own tongue an interpreter was necessary, and that was not an altogether satisfactory arrangement.

The argument is advanced against going to hear lectures that the really important things that the lecturers have to say may be found in print. That is true, but there is a charm in the spoken word that is not always to be found in the printed one. Moreover, the personality of the lecturer adds an interest that may be lacking from his printed utterance. Even though the mechanical reproduction of instrumental or vocal music through the agency of a phonograph or player-piano may be well-nigh indistinguishable from the original, it is far better to hear the singer or the pianist or violinist in person. By the same token there is a satisfaction in hearing a famous person talk that is not to be found in reading his works.

It is no more unreasonable to pay to hear a good lecturer than to hear a good singer. The laborer in every field is worth of his hire, and ability to draw as a lecturer is one of the legitimate rewards of study or genius. There always will be a demand for lecturers. Still those who cannot afford to hear them can console themselves with the thought that the substance of their remarks can usually be found in books, or magazines, or newspaper articles.

The minister who asserts there will be pianos in heaven puts a lot of apartment dwellers in a dilemma.

The British budget provides for an interest payment to the United States, but the money will be more convincing.

THE BIBLE IN PICTURES AND TEXT

By HELEN E. OHRENSCHALL

THE DESTRUCTION OF SODOM

GOD revealed to Abraham that he would destroy the city of Sodom because of its wickedness. Abraham prayed the Lord to spare it if fifty righteous men could be found, but not even ten righteous men could be found. So the righteous would not be destroyed with the wicked. God sent two angels who took Lot, his wife and two daughters from the city and warned them not to look back. Lot's wife did and became a pillar of salt. And fire and brimstone were rained upon Sodom and Gomorrah.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 11.—Greenwich Village, America's Montmartre, flies the flag of genius and cloaks its poverty in cynical jest. The fires of ambition in reality burn feebly but by opera bouffe locus focus the village has branded itself with the spurious sign of intellectuality.

In the waffle shops and tea rooms young men escort their maidens, split the check unashamed and with a laugh call it true Bohemianism. That is the adroit village way of side-stepping poverty. Laugh it off—and loaf on.

The professional villager follows the line of least resistance and attempts to gild a life of penury with a false glamour. The attic becomes a temple of titanic wisdom and the crust of bread and bottle of milk topics for frail slipperage.

One finds the level quickly in the village or moves away filled with acrid reactions. The dancers, the scribblers, the sculptors and others who pursue the seven arts cannot live there long without being influenced by its enervating outlook upon life.

There is no denying that genius is to be found in the village, but laziness is the sororite that stifles it. Mornings are lost in sleep and afternoons in remorse. When the candles begin to sputter the Village dons the smock and 'tut tut' instead of creative work dashes out to the slushy cafes ponderously to discuss the complex and reflex.

The spotlight is a lure. They enjoy being stared at by timid sight-seers from the hinterland. Posers all. At Bertolt's nightly a soulful eyed youth sits alone at a table with pencil poised hour after hour—seemingly unmindful of the shammers' curious gaze. During the day he sells neckties in a Broadway haberdashery.

He is the spirit of the Village—the spirit of sham intellectualism. Even Tiny Tim with his velvet coat and cap who prates on the ethereal wonders of his "soul candy" lives in New Jersey and raises hogs.

Washington Irving nicknamed New York "Gotham" and O. Henry, who never ceased to thrill to its wonders called it "Bagdad-on-the-Subway." Yet most New Yorkers remain blind to the city's marvels; their lives are as circumscribed as those of the cross roads huncher.

At a public dinner the other night 127 guests out of 208, all born in New York, admitted that they had never seen the obelisk in Central Park, a mighty stone pillar that stood in front of the Temple of the Sun in Heliopolis, near Cairo, Egypt, 1,000 years before Christ's birth.

The busiest corner in New York is at Columbus Circle, where 29,210 vehicles pass within twelve hours and yet any New Yorker will tell you that 42nd street and Fifth Avenue is the busiest because it seems more congested.

So quickly does the island diffuse its power that the 50,000 monthly increase in population is like adding a drop to the ocean. The Bronx has more people in it than Brussels, Rome, Naples, Madrid or Dresden, and yet the Bronx is considered a sort of suburb.

There are 16,870 members of the New York police force and 6,000 members of the fire department and it costs $16,000,000 a year to clean its streets. From 14th street to 35th street, there are 148 first class places of amusement.

An actor, with a Harry Lauder throat strain, was told by a Broadway hotel maudience girl that a certain fellow in town was called the champion tightwad because he only tipped her a dime. "Well," said the actor, "I'm going to take the championship away from him."

He never would have died at all, if it had not been for some old complication.

I do not fear so much the human ill, in fact, I'd gloat in simon pure ex-itation. They all are given this one explanation. If assured by him I did not have a complication.

For pity's sake. The U. S. S. S.—no matter, it was the U. S. S. S.—something—was on its way to France. It was a yonch bight and the only persons visible on that part of the deck were Gullings, the worst gub in the Navy, who was doing deck guard, and Lieutenant Commander Glibber, the gruffest and most generally unpopular lieutenant commander in any Navy. Suddenly there was a loud splash, as the ship gave a lurch, and no more lieutenant commander was to be seen.

Gullings wrestled with his conscience for a moment, then gave up the struggle, dove in and grabbed his superior by the neck as he was going down for the third time.

"Gullings," gasped the latter, "I thank you. If we are rescued I shall do anything I possibly can for you."

"Sir," answered Gullings, "if it isn't asking too much, would you mind not telling the gang who it was that saved you? They'd half kill me."

His Compliment. He (on rather crowded ballroom floor)—I'd like nothing better than strict traffic rules around here. She—And why?

"Then I'd have the number of the sweet young thing who collared me as a moment ago."—from Judge.

The One Subject. You can believe what some men say except when they get on the subject of golf.—from Judge.

Should Be More. It is difficult to keep a cook in the country. "Yes, indeed. So few cooks are for golf."—from Judge.

A Hint. Poet—I am seldom able to get money rattle in my pocket. His Wife—You never will unless you shake yourself.—from Judge.

On the Road. Frank—My engine is misfiring. Wife—Oh, Frank, and the garage isn't locked? Frank—What's that got to do with it? Wife—The engine will be sober before we get back.

It's just the same when one the verdict sees, He couldn't live, he died of complication.
